

07 JULY 2021

With the launch of the Murban Crude Oil Futures, Abu Dhabi has signalled more than just a wish to price its own oil production. The futures herald Abu Dhabi's desire to become the next global commodity hub, powered by its geographic centrality, proximity to Africa, legal code and infrastructure. Does the world need another hub? What about the crucial component of talent? Our guest is Mark Cutis, CEO of ADGM authority, the body tasked with providing the ecosystem and responsibility for leading Abu Dhabi's growth as a leading financial and commodity powerhouse.

The HC Insider Podcast

Each day, around the world, we have fascinating one-on-one conversations with our connections. Our collaborators are uniquely informed, creative and inspirational in their fields. We want to provide our community a seat alongside us, listening in to these conversations in that special way podcasting provides, as we tackle topical and people related issues with the leaders and leading minds in our sector.

This article was produced as part of HC Insider. HC Insider is Human Capital's dedicated media service. In addition to providing subscribers with relevant and informative editorials, we also report on people moves in the energy and natural resource world.

To receive free HC Insider alerts to your desktop or mobile, sign up here.

About Human Capital

Established in 2003, Human Capital identifies and recruits business-critical talent for organisations involved in the energy, mining, agriculture and nutrition supply chains.

From our offices in London, Geneva, Houston, Hong Kong, Singapore, São Paulo and Sydney, we have built our high reputation on delivering quality professional search services across multiple product, functional and regional markets.